

CODE OF CONDUCT

NCR CODE OF CONDUCT

A MESSAGE FROM NCR'S CHAIRMAN AND CEO

For more than 133 years, NCR has been a leader in turning consumer interactions with businesses into exceptional experiences. This is a tremendous accomplishment and one that very few organizations can claim. Looking back at what we have accomplished over the past decade alone, I am proud to have led our company as we have taken bold steps to transform NCR into a leading software company. Indeed, what we are accomplishing together is remarkable, and we could not have achieved this transformation without our uncompromising focus on individual accountability and our steadfast adherence to our Shared Values of integrity, respect and teamwork, customer dedication, performance, innovation, and courage, and to our Code of Conduct.

At NCR, we expect our associates to exemplify our Shared Values and our Code of Conduct every day, in everything that they do for NCR. We reinforce our commitment to living our Code of Conduct by requiring all NCR associates, including myself and every member of my Leadership Team, to complete an annual training and certification course on the Code of Conduct. Our requirements around the Code of Conduct demonstrate our universal commitment to protect NCR's reputation and brand – a responsibility that each of us is accountable for many times over on a daily basis.

As I have stated many times before, NCR's Shared Values and Code of Conduct form the foundation of how we operate every day. We will not tolerate the behavior of those who do not conduct themselves in accordance with our core beliefs, and we expect that any associate who sees such behavior will have the fortitude to bring that to the attention of their managers, the Law Department, the AlertLine, Internal Audit, HR, or Global Security.

NCR's long-standing commitment to boldly address change with integrity in everything we do is what makes us a great company – and what has enabled us to deliver outstanding value to our customers for well over a century. There are very few companies that can claim such a legacy, and it is one we must strive to protect and build upon, by doing the right thing every day and everywhere we are.

Sincerely,

Bill Nuti

Chairman and CEO
NCR Corporation

INTRODUCTION/EXPLANATION

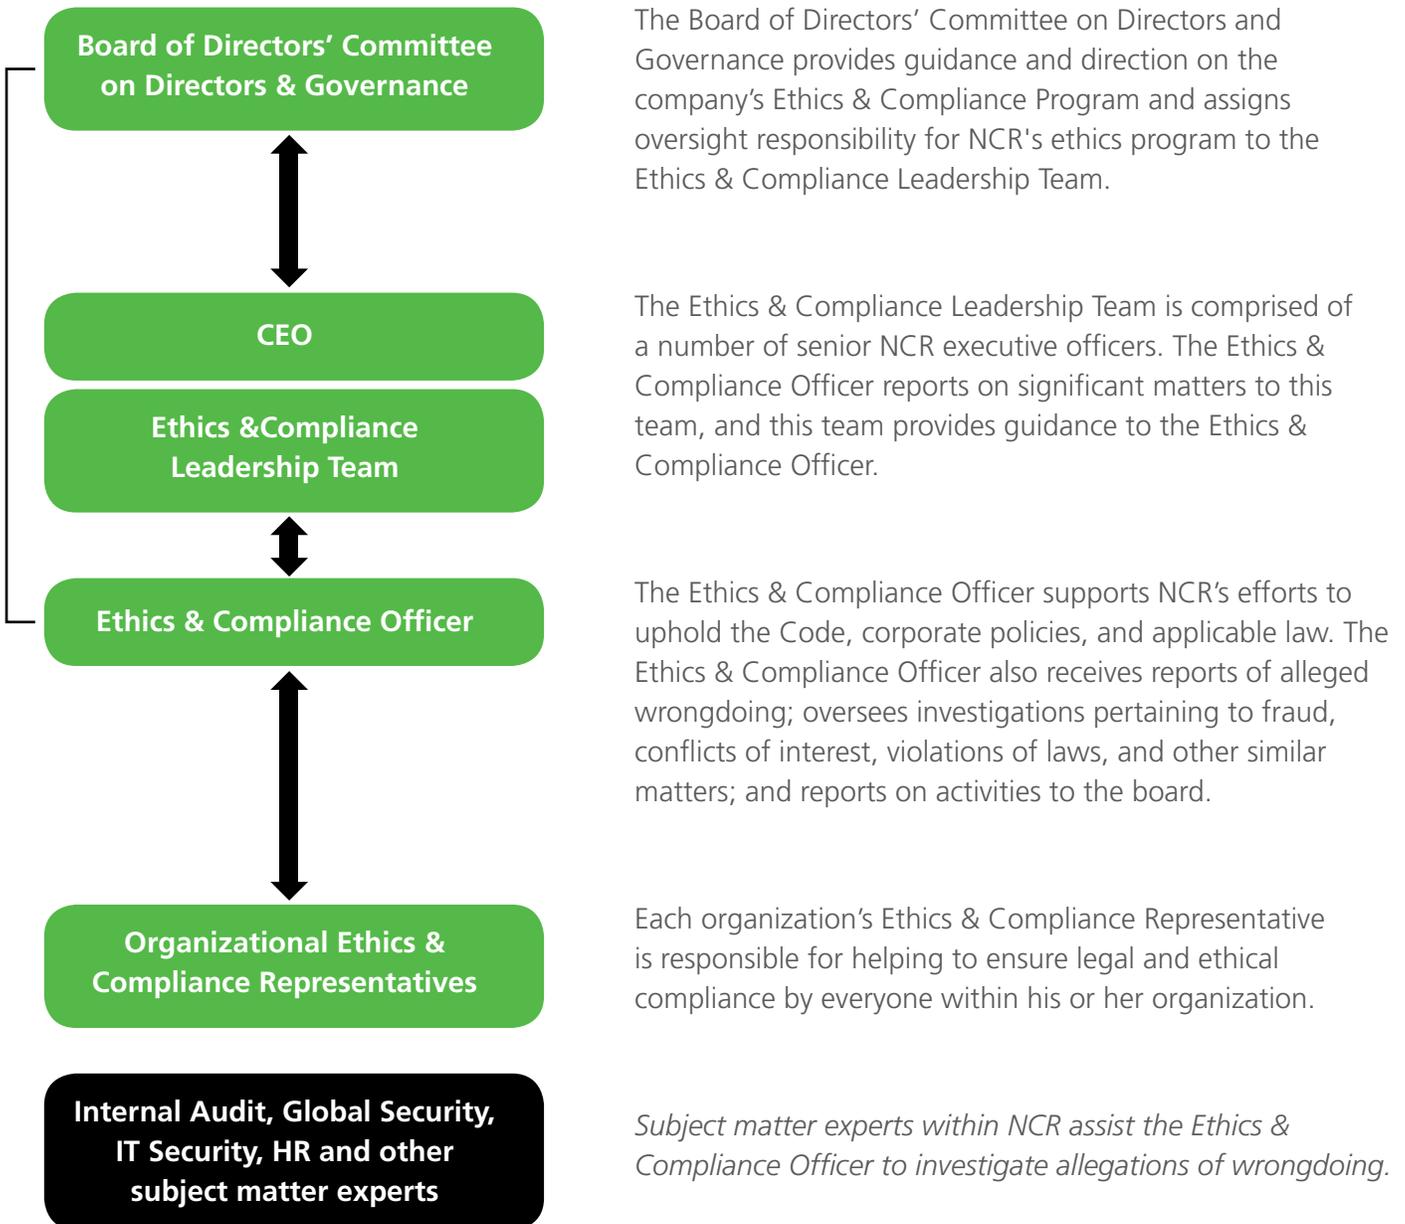

Purpose of this Code of Conduct

The NCR Code of Conduct (the “Code”) is our guide and point of reference for upholding NCR’s Shared Values. While our principles for business conduct are described in these pages, the Code does not cover every situation that may arise, nor establish every rule. NCR’s corporate policies and procedures, as well as our individual commitment to ethical and legal behavior, must also guide NCR employees.

The Code applies to all employees of NCR Corporation and its affiliates (collectively “NCR”) and to NCR’s board of directors. The Code affirms our commitment to the highest standards of integrity in our relationships with one another and with our customers, suppliers, strategic partners, and shareholders. We expect our suppliers, contractors, representatives and agents to embrace these same values and standards.

Ethics & Compliance Program

The Code is the cornerstone of NCR’s corporate Ethics & Compliance Program. The Ethics and Compliance Program is the governance structure through which NCR manages its adherence to the Code.

NCR'S EXPECTATIONS OF ITS EMPLOYEES

All NCR employees must read the Code, must understand it, and must follow it. No one must ever commit dishonest, destructive, or illegal acts - even if directed to do so by a manager or co-worker. No one may direct others to act improperly, even if doing so appears to be to NCR's advantage. If applicable laws conflict with the provisions of this Code, employees must follow applicable law and contact the Law Department immediately about the conflict. Employees who do not follow the Code will be subject to discipline, up to and including termination. In addition, employees who violate the law may be subject to personal liability.

NCR managers have a special responsibility to show through words and actions their personal commitment to the highest standards of integrity. In particular, managers are responsible for:

- Ensuring that their team members understand and uphold NCR Shared Values, the Code, and NCR policy, and providing them with coaching and training as appropriate.
- Taking reasonable steps to prevent unethical conduct within their areas of responsibility, and to detect, report and address suspected unethical conduct, whether within their areas of responsibility or not.
- Considering whether an employee follows our Code before placing that person in a position of responsibility.
- Creating an environment that promotes compliance, encourages employees to raise policy questions and concerns, and prohibits retaliation.

To help NCR uphold the Code, all employees are required to report instances of suspected violations of the Code, NCR policy, and applicable law.

NCR understands that employees may sometimes be faced with ethical dilemmas and the best course of action may not always be clear. The following questions can help when employees are not sure what to do.

- What feels wrong about this situation?
- Is this situation against company policy or the law?
- How will our stakeholders be affected?
- How will I be affected?

Employees may consult their managers, Human Resources, the Ethics & Compliance Officer, NCR AlertLine, the Law Department, or Global Security if they have any questions or concerns. In addition, employees with questions or concerns about the application of a particular policy may check the policy manual or contact the policy owner.

How to Raise Concerns

If you suspect, observe, or learn of unethical or illegal conduct, including suspected improper conduct related to securities laws and regulations, accounting standards, accounting controls and audit practices, you are required to raise concerns to your manager or to subject matter experts within the organization, such as Human Resources, Global Security, the Law Department or Internal Audit, as soon as your concerns arise.

Employees may also contact the Ethics & Compliance Officer or the NCR AlertLine when they wish to raise potential compliance violations or have questions or concerns about compliance issues within NCR. The NCR AlertLine permits anonymous reporting where permitted by law. The laws in some countries may preclude the reporting of certain types of concerns through the NCR AlertLine, or may discourage or prohibit anonymous reporting. The Law Department, Global Human Resources, Internal Audit, the Corporate Controller's Division, and Global Security will support the efforts of the Ethics & Compliance Officer and Organizational Ethics & Compliance Resources.

WORKPLACE MATTERS

Conflict Resolution

NCR recognizes that conflicts may arise among individuals who bring different skills, qualities, and personalities into the workplace. Early resolution of these conflicts is in everyone's best interest. Throughout the company, NCR provides processes and procedures to help employees and managers resolve conflicts in the workplace. We encourage all employees to seek information about conflict resolution from their managers or from HR Central. Many NCR area and country organizations have dispute resolution processes spelled out in their employee guides or in special booklets provided to each employee.

Workplace Violence

NCR is committed to providing a safe and secure work environment for its employees and visitors. All individuals on NCR premises must treat one another with respect and courtesy. NCR will not tolerate acts or threats of violence. To support NCR's "zero tolerance" position toward workplace violence, both employees and visitors to NCR's facilities must report instances of actual or threatened violence on NCR premises.

NCR's Workplace Violence Policy provides guidelines on the appropriate actions if employees and visitors witness actual or threatened acts of violence. Depending upon the nature and severity of the incident, NCR will engage local law enforcement authorities, on-site security guards, community mental health advisors, or Human Resources to take prompt action to remove, discipline, counsel or prosecute any individual on NCR premises who poses a safety risk or commits an act of violence.

NCR prohibits the possession of weapons in the workplace.

For more information about Workplace Violence at NCR, please see Corporate Management Policy 708: "Workplace Violence."

For additional guidance, please see Questions and Answers or Your Responsibilities.

Non-Discrimination

NCR is committed to providing a work environment free from any illegal discrimination based on race, color, religion, national origin, gender, age, disability, sexual orientation, marital status, or any other unlawful factor to the fullest extent required by local law. Decisions concerning hiring, performance appraisals, and promotions will be based only on those factors permitted by law, such as an employee's qualifications, skills, and achievements.

NCR's policy is to comply with applicable human rights and employment laws. We do not tolerate unlawful discrimination in any aspect of employment, including employment terms and conditions, recruiting, hiring, compensation, promotion, or termination.

For more information about non-discrimination at NCR, please see Corporate Management Policy 701: "Non-Discrimination - Equal Employment Opportunity." For additional guidance, please see Questions and Answers or Your Responsibilities.

Equal Employment Opportunity / Affirmative Action

NCR affirms its commitment to providing equal opportunity to all employees and applicants for employment in accordance with all applicable laws, directives, and regulations of governing bodies and agencies. We want to make sure that as a company, we treat our employees with respect and that, when making any employment-related decision, we only consider relevant performance factors. Specifically, it is NCR's policy to:

- ✓ Comply with the letter and the spirit of all applicable employment laws and regulations
- ✓ Provide equal opportunity to all employees and to all applicants for employment
- ✓ Take appropriate affirmative action to make equal opportunity a reality
- ✓ Make reasonable accommodations to the limitations of qualified employees or applicants with disabilities
- ✓ Provide maximum opportunity to minority and women-owned businesses to participate as NCR suppliers, contractors, and subcontractors; and
- ✓ Comply with federal, state, and local procurement regulations and programs

Each employee has a responsibility to support the company's commitment to equal employment opportunity and affirmative action. NCR managers should understand and carry out all aspects of our equal opportunity policy. Your local Human Resources partner and the Law Department can answer any specific questions that you may have about the laws of your country.

For more information about non-discrimination at NCR, please see

Corporate Management Policy 705: "Diversity in the Global Workplace."

For additional guidance, please see Questions and Answers or Your Responsibilities.

Harassment

NCR is committed to providing a working environment that is free from harassment based on personal characteristics, including race, color, religion, national origin, gender, age, disability, sexual orientation, marital status, or any other characteristic protected by applicable law. We do not tolerate conduct that creates an intimidating or offensive work environment. Some examples of conduct that NCR will not tolerate include:

- ✗ Racial, religious, sexual, or ethnic comments or jokes;
- ✗ Unwelcome sexual advances or inappropriate physical contact; and
- ✗ Unwelcome sexually-oriented gestures, images, jokes or statements, whether written or oral.

For more information about NCR's zero-tolerance policy against harassment at NCR, please see

Corporate Management Policy 702: "Harassment."

For additional guidance, please see Questions and Answers or Your Responsibilities.

Human Trafficking, Child and Forced Labor

NCR does not condone human trafficking or forced labor of any type, including but not limited to sex trafficking, debt bondage, forced prison labor, or child labor. NCR does not hire individuals below the legal working age, and legal workers under 18 years of age should not perform dangerous work. NCR does not permit corporal punishment or the threat of corporal punishment nor do we prohibit employees from terminating their employment with NCR.

For more information about NCR's position on human rights, please see

Corporate Management Policy 927: "Human Rights."

For additional guidance, please see Questions and Answers or Your Responsibilities.

Drug-Free Workplace

NCR is committed to a drug-free workplace. The misuse of drugs, both legal and illegal, while on company premises or while conducting company business, is prohibited. NCR prohibits the use, possession, distribution, or sale of illegal drugs on its premises, in its vehicles, and while conducting NCR business. Furthermore, it is expected that employees will not conduct NCR business while under the influence of alcohol or other drugs. To promote this policy, to the extent permitted by local law NCR requires a drug-screening test of all candidates that have received offers of employment, and may require additional drug screenings during the course of an employee's tenure at NCR. Employees who work on U.S. government contracts may have a special obligation to notify their managers of convictions for certain drug-related offenses.

For more information about NCR's commitment to a drug-free workplace, please see Corporate Management Policy 219: "Drug-Free Workplace."
For additional guidance, please see Questions and Answers or Your Responsibilities.

Consensual Relationships

NCR does not seek to insert itself into employees' personal relationships. However, when an employee has a significant personal relationship with another employee, complications can sometimes arise that may cause problems in the workplace. To minimize the chances of any adverse impact on the workplace, employees must conduct themselves in a professional, appropriate, and mature manner.

Additionally, managers should be aware that having an intimate relationship with any person in the organization who directly or indirectly reports to them might limit their ability to manage certain aspects of the business or might cause other problems in the workplace. Therefore, the Company strongly discourages employees from living with, dating, or becoming involved in a romantic relationship with another person over whom the employee has supervisory, hiring, or disciplinary authority. Managers and their subordinates who have or enter into such a relationship are required to immediately disclose the existence of the relationship to Human Resources or the Ethics & Compliance Officer, so that the Company may take appropriate action to address issues that may arise.

Acceptable Use of Infrastructure Technology Resources

NCR's electronic information technology (IT) infrastructure is to be used for NCR business purposes and may not be used to espouse personal, political, or religious views or to solicit support for any non-business cause or event. Each individual must use NCR's IT infrastructure resources in a responsible, ethical, and lawful manner. On an occasional basis, employees may use Company resources such as printers, copy machines, Internet access, telephone or e-mail for personal use as long as NCR's Information Technology and other policies are followed; there are no measurable costs or negative impact on NCR's business; and co-workers are not distracted.

You should use NCR's Internet access to gain access to sites on the public Internet that are needed for legitimate NCR business. We permit use of the NCR IT infrastructure to access the Internet for occasional personal use, subject to the criteria listed above. Access to Internet material in the NCR workplace or using NCR's Internet access in a way or for a purpose that conflicts with NCR's Shared Values or is not compatible with a productive work environment is prohibited and may also result in potential legal liabilities to NCR and to the individuals who access them; it may also subject employees to disciplinary action up to and including termination. Examples of restricted sites include, but are not limited to, those with information or activities involving non-business related chat groups, pornography, criminal skills and illegal activities (including those related to the circumvention of network security controls), dating services and discussions, the purchase and use of illegal or recreational drugs, extreme or obscene material, gambling, hate speech, games, and entertainment. IT may restrict access to external sites in its sole and absolute discretion.

Employees who communicate about NCR on discussion boards, blogs, chat rooms, or other public online forums must comply with the law, NCR's policies, including policies addressing appropriate protection, use and disclosure of confidential information, insider trading, non-discrimination, and harassment.

In addition, employees are prohibited from using e-mail or other electronic messaging or communication tools, among other things, to create or exchange offensive, harassing, obscene or threatening messages or to create or exchange chain letters and other unsolicited non-business related e-mail.

Except where prohibited by applicable law, NCR reserves all rights to search and review any information sent, received, or stored using its IT infrastructure.

For more information about the use of NCR's information technology resources, please see Corporate Management Policy 1404: "Information Technology Infrastructure Policy." For additional guidance, please see Questions and Answers or Your Responsibilities.

Data Privacy / Employment References

Personal information is information that relates to a natural person. It is NCR policy to collect personal information only by fair and lawful means and to maintain such information only for legitimate business, legal or contractual reasons. NCR provides choices about data processing where practicable, limits access to personal information to those who need the information for legitimate purposes, and limits the use of personal information to the purposes that are consistent with the purposes for which the data was collected, or as otherwise permitted by law. NCR may disclose such information to its affiliates, independent service providers, subcontractors or unaffiliated third parties, where needed to support the uses described above. As a global company, NCR may transfer personal information outside of the country where it was collected, unless prohibited or limited by applicable law. NCR will not sell, rent or lease lists of such information except as part of a sale of that business.

When asked to provide an employment reference or verification, NCR's policy is to verify dates of employment and the position(s) held, absent the consent of the employee to provide additional data.

Laws may vary significantly from country to country on matters of employee privacy and other workplace issues. For more information about workplace policies and procedures regarding data privacy, please contact HR Central or the Law Department.

For more information about employee privacy at NCR, please see Corporate Management Policies 204: "Protection of Personal Data" and 205: "Privacy of Protected Health Information." For additional guidance, please see Questions and Answers or Your Responsibilities.

CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

Conflicts of interest arise when the personal interests of an NCR employee influence, or appear to influence, the employee’s judgment or ability to act in NCR’s best interest. In general, employees must always act on an arm’s length basis and in the best interests of NCR when conducting business with outside parties on behalf of NCR. Employees also must avoid taking any actions or acquiring any interests that may make it difficult to perform their work for NCR objectively and effectively. Finally, employees must deal with all outside parties in a fair and objective manner, without favor or preference based upon personal considerations.

PROTECTION OF COMPANY ASSETS

Company Funds and Property

All NCR employees must protect company assets from loss, theft, damage, or unauthorized uses or disclosures. Company assets include but are not limited to trademarks and service marks; source code, trade secrets, personal data, confidential information, money and charge cards; land and buildings; records; vehicles; keys and identity cards equipment, including printers, scanners, copiers, and telephones; computing devices and software; Internet, intranet, and other networks; scrap and obsolete equipment.

Proprietary Information

Proprietary information is NCR knowledge that must not be disclosed to others, except as required by law or as permitted by company policy. Proprietary information includes all non-public information that might be of use to NCR's competitors, or any information that, if disclosed, would otherwise be harmful to the company or its customers such as, among other things:

- Trade secrets and know-how.
- Research and development, including inventions, patent applications, and engineering and laboratory notebooks.
- Customer, stockholder, and supplier lists and information.
- Network management information.
- Confidential manufacturing processes or procedures.
- Source code.
- Business strategies and results, product plans, information about unannounced products or services, concepts and designs, marketing plans, pricing, and financial data.
- Confidential organizational information, including organizational charts.
- Confidential information NCR obtains from third parties.
- Information concerning potential acquisitions or divestitures.
- Company financial outlooks and projections.

Disclosure of proprietary information could damage NCR competitively or financially. Disclosure may also be prohibited simply because the information belongs to others and NCR has agreed to keep it private. When a legitimate business need to disclose NCR proprietary information arises, a legally binding non-disclosure agreement may be appropriate. Consult the Law Department in these situations.

For more information about how NCR classifies its information assets, please see Corporate Management Polices 926: "Confidential Information Disclosure Policy" and 1402: "Protecting Information within NCR."

For additional guidance, please see Questions and Answers or Your Responsibilities.

Complying with Policy and Reporting Suspected Inappropriate Actions

All NCR employees must comply with NCR policies and procedures designed to protect NCR physical and intangible property from loss, theft, damage, or unauthorized uses or disclosures. Employees must report any suspected loss, theft, damage, or unauthorized uses or disclosures of NCR assets to NCR Global Security as soon as a concern arises.

Accuracy and Retention of Company Records

NCR is required to maintain complete and accurate business records to meet financial, legal, and management obligations. We use this information to fulfill our obligations to customers, suppliers, shareholders, employees, and government agencies. Company records include general and subsidiary ledgers, employee and payroll records, vouchers, customer invoices, time reports, contracts, billing records, benchmark and measurement data, employee and customer survey results, performance and production records, and other essential data for financial and business decisions. All employees must follow NCR's internal controls and procedures to ensure that (1) all transactions are properly authorized, (2) NCR's assets are safeguarded against unauthorized or improper use, and (3) all transactions are properly recorded and reported in accordance with NCR's policies and applicable law.

Proper record retention is important to ensure records are systematically maintained and available to satisfy corporate, governmental and other requirements. Every NCR organization is responsible for maintaining a comprehensive record retention schedule providing not only the criteria for the retention of records but for the systematic disposal of records.

For additional information regarding NCR's record retention policy, please see Corporate Finance & Accounting Policy 111: "Record Retention."

Financial Reporting

NCR's financial reporting must be timely, accurate, and supported by appropriate underlying records and documents. As a publicly-traded company, NCR must submit financial reports and information to the United States Securities and Exchange Commission. As a result, NCR senior financial management must be informed of all material non-financial information, as well as financial information, impacting NCR. This information must be properly recorded, processed, summarized and reported to NCR's senior management to allow timely decisions regarding required disclosures. Consult with the Chief Financial Officer's organization for more information about NCR's reporting obligations.

The Corporate Finance & Accounting Policy Manual and the Finance & Administration section of the Corporate Management Policy Manual provides detailed information specific to protecting NCR's information and other assets. Employees should be familiar with all policies, but specifically with Corporate Finance & Accounting Policies 112: "Signature Authorization for Expenditures," and Corporate Management Policy 1402: "Protecting Information within NCR." For additional guidance, please see Questions and Answers or Your Responsibilities.

Investment Rules and "Insider Trading"

Securities laws and NCR policy prohibit employees from trading, directly or indirectly, in NCR securities while in possession of "material non-public information" about the Company. Material non-public information is generally defined as any information that has not been widely disclosed to the public and is likely to influence an investor to buy, sell, or hold a company's stock. Material non-public information can take many forms. Examples include acquisition or divestiture plans; actual or projected financial information not yet public; new contracts, products, or discoveries; major organizational changes; or other business plans.

NCR employees are also prohibited from directly or indirectly trading in the securities of other publicly held companies, such as customers and vendors, on the basis of material non-public information. It is also illegal and against company policy for NCR employees to share material non-public information about NCR or another company with your friends, family members, or other third parties (this is called "tipping").

Your job may provide you with material non-public information about NCR and other companies, including customers and vendors. To comply with NCR's insider trading policy:

- ✓ Never provide material non-public information about NCR or other companies known to you through your work at NCR;
- ✓ Restrict access to material non-public information about NCR or other companies to those employees who "need-to-know" that information for business reasons (such persons may be identified in a non-disclosure agreement)
- ✓ Do not advise or encourage another person to trade in a company's stock if you have material non-public information about that company; and
- ✓ Never buy or sell NCR securities or another company's publicly traded stock while in possession of material information, whether or not a blackout period is pending.

Because violations of insider trading securities laws can result in serious financial and criminal penalties, NCR prohibits certain transactions to avoid even the appearance of impropriety.

- First, certain NCR employees ("restricted insiders") may not purchase or sell NCR securities during defined "blackout periods" before and after the announcement of the company's annual and quarterly earnings results unless such trades occur under a company-approved, pre-arranged trading plan. This restriction extends to changing investment directions in the Employee Stock Purchase Plan (by increasing or decreasing the amount of NCR stock purchased) or the company's Savings Plan (by investing more or less money in NCR securities) during a blackout period.
- Second, all NCR employees are prohibited from trading in NCR derivative securities at any time. Derivative securities generally include "put" and "call" options (publicly available "rights" to sell or buy securities within a certain number of months at a specified price) and "short sales" (selling borrowed securities which the seller hopes can be purchased at a lower price when they are due for delivery).
- Finally, employees cannot engage in any transaction where they may profit from the short-term speculative swings in the value of NCR securities.

For additional information regarding NCR's insider trading policy, please see Corporate Management Policy 922: "Insider Trading," and 922Q: "NCR's Insider Trading Policy Employee Q&As." For additional guidance, please see Questions and Answers and Your Responsibilities. Additionally, the Law Department can provide further guidance.

Inspection Requests or Litigation

Because NCR is a large and diverse organization, its operations are regulated by many different governmental agencies around the world. As a result, various governmental agents, auditors, investigators, police, and other officials visit or contact NCR employees requesting information. NCR's Law Department will handle all legal affairs involving the Company and its subsidiaries. The Law Department may choose to provide legal services directly or to retain the assistance of outside counsel. The Law Department must be notified immediately of all litigation and governmental information requests or inquiries involving NCR or any of its subsidiaries. NCR insists all employees comply with applicable laws, regulations, and ethical standards. The company cooperates with governmental inquiries consistent with respect for the legal rights of our shareholders and employees. If you have any questions concerning a request or inquiry, please contact the Law Department.

*For additional information, all employees should be familiar with Corporate Management Policy 916: "Responding to Governmental Requests for Information and Facility Inspections" and Corporate Management Policy 918: "Retention of, and Subsequent Relationship with, Outside Legal Counsel."

CONDUCT IN THE MARKETPLACE

As a publicly traded company, NCR releases information and communicates with the media regularly. It is important that these communications be accurate, consistent and timely given the importance of the media's audience – employees, shareholders, investors, customers, prospective customers and suppliers.

For additional information, all employees should be familiar with Corporate Management Policy 1104: "Media Relations."

NCR and its employees must deal fairly with the company's customers, suppliers, strategic partners, employees and competitors. We will not take advantage of anyone through the misrepresentation of facts, manipulation, fraud, abuse of confidential information, or any other unfair practice.

Private-Sector Customers

NCR can succeed only by exceeding customer expectations. We will always seek to fulfill our commitments to our customers and to accurately represent our products and services in the marketplace.

Dealing with Government Customers

Special care must be taken when dealing with government customers. Activities that might be appropriate when working with private-sector customers may be considered improper and even illegal when dealing with government employees. However, you should be aware that bribery, whether of government officials or commercial customers can be criminally prosecuted under U.S. law as well as the local law of other countries. See "FCPA and Other Anti-corruption Laws".

For additional information, employees who work with the U.S. federal government or any state or local government, should consult the NCR Corporate/Personal Integrity Program (C/PIP) manual. Employees, including those who work with other governments, may also contact the Law Department for more information.

Suppliers and Strategic Partners

NCR chooses suppliers based on merit, taking into account factors such as price, quality, delivery capability, technology, design and reputation for service and integrity. We expect our suppliers and strategic partners to conduct business ethically and in accordance with applicable laws and NCR policy.

Interactions with Competitors

Many countries have antitrust or competition laws designed to benefit consumers by promoting competition. While varying in scope, these laws prohibit, among other things, monopolization and illegal agreements among competitors that restrict competition. NCR's policy is to comply with laws that protect intellectual property and trade secrets and the antitrust and competition laws of all countries where we do business. Violation of these laws is a serious matter that can result in criminal penalties for NCR and the individuals who engage in the illegal conduct. Below are key examples of prohibited conduct at NCR.

Improperly Acquiring and Using Information about Competitors

In the normal course of business, it is not unusual to acquire public information about other organizations, including our competitors, through legal and ethical means. However, NCR employees may not seek or receive information about a competitor through non-public means if they know or have reason to believe the information is proprietary or confidential or was improperly obtained. This conduct can potentially violate laws governing intellectual property rights and trade secrets, and/or antitrust and competition laws, or fair trade practice laws. Obtaining proprietary information without the owner's consent or unlawfully inducing such disclosures by past or present employees of other companies is prohibited conduct by all NCR employees, it may also violate these laws. Also, NCR employees may not use third parties to acquire information by improper means. Consult the Law Department for further guidance regarding acquiring or using information about competitors.

Entering into Reciprocal Agreements

It is NCR policy not to enter into reciprocal buying or selling arrangements, which are agreements where one party will buy from a second party, on the express condition that the second party will buy from the first party.

Market Allocation; Bid Rotation

NCR employees may not discuss or enter into agreements to 'divide up' or allocate markets with third parties. For example, NCR employees may not engage in any discussions with any other party not to sell or market products in certain geographies or to certain customers. In addition, NCR employees may not discuss or agree to cooperate with a competitor so that NCR and the competitor win some or all of a deal. For example, NCR may not agree to sit out on a sales opportunity so that a competitor may win the deal, nor may NCR agree with a competitor to price its bid, or a portion of its bid, high so that the competitor may win that deal, or portion of the deal. While it is appropriate for NCR to engage in pricing and marketing strategies that are independent of any action a competitor may or may not take, it is never appropriate to collaborate on strategy with a competitor. Note that the foregoing does not apply to assigning territories or market tiers to an authorized NCR reseller or distributor.

Price Fixing and Refusals to Deal

NCR employees may not agree with third parties to set prices at a certain level or to maintain certain market conditions. Further, NCR may not agree with any third party to refuse to deal with any specific customer, supplier, or group of customers or supplier, in violation of applicable law.

Copyrights

Copyright laws protect original expression such as written materials, works of art and music. Software is also protected by copyright. Copyright laws prohibit the unauthorized duplication, distribution, display, and performance of protected expressions. Copyright infringement can result in legal penalties for our company and for individuals. NCR employees shall respect others' copyrighted works and are not permitted to use unlicensed software, or use licensed software beyond the rights that NCR has been granted in its license. At the same time, NCR employees must protect NCR's copyrighted materials. All employees must report suspected improper use of copyrighted material to the Law Department.

For more information about copyrights and NCR, please see Corporate Management Policy 906: "Copyright Policy."

Anti-Bribery / Anti-Corruption Laws

Anti-bribery and anti-corruption laws around the world, including the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act ("FCPA"), the U.K. Bribery Act, and other anti-bribery and anti-corruption laws (collectively, "Anti-corruption Laws"), make bribery a crime. The FCPA prohibits NCR from providing or promising money or anything of value, directly or indirectly, to foreign government officials for the purpose of obtaining or retaining government business. Foreign officials under the FCPA can include executives and employees of wholly or partially government-owned corporations, universities, public international organizations, and other entities outside the United States. The FCPA also prohibits use of an intermediary (such as an agent or a reseller) to provide or promise any such payments or items of value to a foreign government official. Some Anti-corruption Laws outlaw not only bribery of government officials but bribery of commercial customers as well, and some of those laws also prohibit receiving bribes, including in purely commercial business transactions. In addition to prohibiting bribery, certain Anti-corruption Laws and other laws also require the Company to maintain complete and accurate books and records and have in place adequate internal accounting controls designed to prevent and detect improper payments. In addition to damaging the Company's reputation for doing business with integrity, violation of the Anti-corruption Laws can subject both the Company and its officers and employees to severe civil and criminal penalties.

NCR expects all NCR directors, officers and employees, as well as its consultants, agents, channel partners and other third party representatives to observe and comply with all Anti-corruption Laws.

Specifically, the following actions are not permitted under any circumstances:

- NCR associates may not directly or indirectly offer or provide of any item of value (including money or services) to any third party to encourage the third party to provide any business benefit to NCR or its business partners.
- NCR associates may not request or receive items of value (including money or services) to provide any business benefit to a third party.
- NCR associates may not directly or indirectly offer to pay or pay "facilitating payments," which are payments to officials to expedite the performance of non-discretionary tasks, such as to issue a non-discretionary permit or license.
- NCR associates may not inaccurately record any transaction in NCR's accounting records.

For more information about NCR policy and the provisions of the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, please see Corporate Management Policy 904: "Standards for Business Conduct (Foreign Corrupt Practices Act)." For additional guidance, please see Questions and Answers or Your Responsibilities.

Gifts & Hospitality

Gift-giving practices vary around the world. Generally, gifts are given to foster goodwill and, in some parts of the world, declining a gift may insult the giver. On the other hand, accepting or giving a gift may create a conflict of interest or the appearance of a conflict, and may also violate applicable Anti-corruption Laws.

At NCR, we expect our employees and third parties who represent us to comply with the following requirements:

- Comply with Anti-corruption Laws at all times
- Avoid actual or apparent conflicts of interest
- Offer or provide gifts or hospitality only for a legitimate purpose, such as product promotion or demonstration, and never with the expectation that the recipient will provide a reciprocal business benefit to NCR or its business partners
- Accurately record the value, purpose and recipient of the gift or hospitality in NCR's records
- Comply with NCR policy regarding the value and frequency of providing gifts or hospitality
- Obtain all approvals prior to offering or providing gifts or hospitality

NCR employees and third parties who represent us are also prohibited from:

- Soliciting gifts from anyone doing or seeking to do business with NCR (such as a supplier, strategic business partner, or customer)
- Accepting gifts that are expensive or likely to influence judgment or appear to influence judgment
- Directly or indirectly offering or providing or accepting – under any circumstances – payments, loans, favors, bribes, kickbacks, special privileges, or services to or from anyone in return for doing business with NCR, using NCR products and services, or granting any other favorable treatment to NCR.

Employees who work with government employees are responsible for knowing the local rules and regulations regarding government employee buyer-and-seller relationships. If you have any questions, please contact the Ethics and Compliance Officer or the Law Department.

For more information about NCR policy, please see

Corporate Management Policy 912: "Gifts and Entertainment."

Export Controls

High-tech companies such as NCR must be concerned with export control laws regulating the export and re-export of its products. As a U.S. company, NCR must be particularly aware of U.S. export controls. Under export control laws, hardware, software, and technical information may be controlled when shipped, carried, or transmitted from one country to another, or even when released within one country to a citizen of another country. All forms of communication (e.g. telephone conversations, faxes, electronic mail, etc.) that contain technical information, when sent to another country or provided to an individual who is a citizen of a country other than the United States, may also be considered a controlled export.

Export control laws are particularly important to NCR sales, engineering, support, professional services, procurement and human resources; organizations to which our products may be sold; or individuals to whom technical information about our products and services may be provided.

Export laws typically require consideration of the following questions:

- What is the commodity, software, or technical information to be exported?
- To whom will the commodity, software or information be provided, and would they be allowed to access or receive it?
- Where will the product be exported?
- How will the product be used?

In addition to laws and regulations that control the export of technology, some export restrictions are broader in application, and effectively constitute embargoes on doing any business with certain identified governments, organizations, entities and individuals. These economic and trade sanctions may be imposed by the United States based on its foreign policy and national security goals, or by other countries or entities such as the United Nations.

The NCR Export Compliance organization is responsible for coordinating NCR's compliance with export control laws. In addition, selected organizations are responsible for designating an Export Compliance Manager to implement NCR's export compliance program within their organization.

For more information about export controls and NCR, please contact the Corporate Export Compliance organization at NCR.Export@ncr.com and see Corporate Management Policy 919: "Export Control Compliance." For additional guidance, please see Questions and Answers or Your Responsibilities.

Import Laws

Most countries, including the United States, have laws controlling imports and regulating import duties on merchandise imported into that country. These laws typically govern what can be imported into the country, how the articles must be marked, how the imported merchandise must be valued, and what duties must be paid. NCR's compliance with import laws is coordinated through the NCR Import Compliance organization. All organizations that are involved in import activities should designate an Import Compliance Coordinator within their organization.

For more information about import controls and NCR, please contact the Import Compliance organization at Brokers.ImportNCR@ncr.com, and see Corporate Management Policy 917: "Import Compliance."

International Economic Boycotts

As a U.S. company, NCR must comply with U.S. regulations prohibiting the participation in economic boycotts not condoned by the U.S. government, such as the Arab League boycott of Israel. NCR must report to the U.S. government any boycott-related requests it receives, even if NCR refuses to honor the request. Boycott-related requests can be received orally or in bid invitations, tender documents, purchase orders, contracts, letters of credit, shipping documents, or other written communications.

U.S. anti-boycott regulations prohibit NCR from:

- Refusing to do business with a boycotted country, its nationals, or its businesses.
- Discriminating for boycott purposes against any person on the basis of race, religion, sex or national origin.
- Furnishing information about NCR's business relationship with a boycotted country, its nationals, or blacklisted companies or persons.
- Furnishing for boycott purposes information about any person's race, religion, gender, national origin, or charitable activities.
- Implementing or honoring letters of credit containing prohibited boycott conditions.

For more information about NCR's anti-boycott policy, please see

Corporate Management Policy 903, "Anti-boycott Law Compliance."

For additional guidance, please see Questions and Answers or Your Responsibilities.

COMMUNITY ACTIVITY

Charitable Contributions

Around the world, NCR encourages employees to participate in charitable organizations and community activities. Employees should ensure, however, that no conflict of interest -- either actual or potential -- exists between their NCR employment and their duties in public or civic affairs, whether elective or appointed, paid or voluntary. While NCR employees are encouraged to become actively involved in community activities, all employee participation, whether in the form of time, money, or other resources, must always be voluntary.

NCR, through the NCR Foundation, also provides grants to charitable organizations that are aligned with the company's self-service philosophy, including global grants through U.S.-based international non-profit agencies. Employees who would like to suggest that NCR contribute corporate funds to charitable organizations must contact the NCR Foundation administrator at Foundation.administrator@ncr.com.

Political Contributions

NCR supports employee participation in the political process, for example, voting in elections or making personal contributions to support candidates or parties of their choice. Employees may express their views on government, legislation, and other matters of local and national interest. Such activities, however, must be undertaken on an employee's own time and at his or her own expense. Further, NCR will not dictate to an employee or anyone else which political party or view to support. Under no circumstances will any employee be compensated or reimbursed for personal political contributions or be given or denied employment or promotion as a result of making, or failing to make, a political contribution.

In many countries where NCR does business, laws prohibit NCR from making direct or indirect contributions to a political party or candidate in connection with a government election. This includes contributions in the form of cash, goods, services, loans, property, or the use of NCR's facilities. (In the United States, this prohibition is not intended to interfere with NCR's administration of the NCR Political Action Committee, which accepts voluntary personal contributions from eligible, salaried employees). As a result, NCR employees may not:

- Commit company funds or other assets to political candidates, parties or other political activities, including public policy initiatives or referendums, without the prior approval of the Senior Director, Global Government Affairs
- Provide or promise money or anything of value to a government official to obtain or retain business
- Allow use of company facilities or equipment for political activities without the prior approval of the Senior Director, Global Government Affairs.

The NCR Global Government Affairs office in Washington, D.C., can provide further guidance about political activity and can be contacted at GovernmentAffairs.NCR@ncr.com.

For additional guidance, please see Questions and Answers or Your Responsibilities.

IN SUMMARY

Every NCR employee must uphold NCR Shared Values and must follow NCR's Code of Conduct. In living up to this responsibility, we may sometimes want the help of others in our decision-making. Most often, your manager will be your best source for counsel; however, there may be times when you require input from others. In addition to contacting those persons or organizations referred to throughout the code (including Human Resources, the Law Department, the Ethics & Compliance Office, and Global Security), questions or concerns about business practices and behaviors can be clarified through NCR AlertLine.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

COMMUNITY ACTIVITY

Q: I am running for public office in my community. How might this affect my job at NCR?

A: NCR encourages employees' active involvement in community affairs. As an NCR employee, it is acceptable to seek and hold public office as long as such responsibilities do not diminish your ability to carry out your duties to NCR. Employees who seek public office may not campaign or solicit support of fellow employees, NCR suppliers, or NCR customers, nor may they use company time or resources in such pursuits. If in the course of your civic duties a situation arises requiring a decision that specifically involves NCR, you must abstain from the decision-making process.

CONDUCT IN THE MARKETPLACE

Q: After a particularly long project at a customer site, I have been offered a gift of a gold wrist watch by the customer. May I accept this offer of thanks?

A: No. NCR employees may not accept a gratuity or gift offered in connection with their job when doing so may adversely affect their judgment in the performance of their duties at NCR. One of the criteria employees should consider is the value of the gift.

Q: My spouse, who is not an NCR employee, is accompanying me on a business trip. The supplier that I am visiting for NCR has offered to pay my spouse's travel expenses. May I accept?

A: No. You are responsible for expenses generated by having your spouse travel with you. NCR employees may not accept expensive gifts from customers or suppliers.

CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

COMPETING OR DOING BUSINESS WITH NCR

Q: My spouse runs a small temporary-employment agency and has asked me whether it is acceptable to market its services to NCR. What should I say?

A: Provided you or your spouse do not in any way use your relationship with NCR to influence the outcome of such marketing activity, you may provide information on your spouse's company to NCR, provided that (i) you first disclose to your management that the supplier seeking NCR business is related to you, and, (ii) you are not involved in or otherwise influence the supplier selection, directly or indirectly. As an example, your spouse may not market to personnel who are in your direct line of authority.

Q: My child is seeking employment and has expressed interest in NCR. What role can I play in helping explore opportunities for my child?

A: Your child is free to seek employment with NCR. However, you may not participate in the hiring process in any way, nor may you use your position to influence it. Further, your child may not accept a position that would report to you and care should be taken to ensure that normal business controls, checks, and balances are not compromised.

Q: My spouse works for a large computer company that is a direct competitor of NCR. Does this constitute a conflict of interest?

A: Maybe, depending on your spouse's position for that company. You should disclose this relationship to the Ethics & Compliance Office to make this determination. Additionally, you should be especially careful to follow Corporate Management Policies regarding proprietary information.

Q: For NCR, I develop and design computer systems for financial customers. May I work on my own time as a computer systems consultant for financial companies that are not NCR customers?

A: No. Generally, you are prohibited from engaging in any outside employment that is substantially similar to your job at NCR. In this particular case, such activity would place you in competition with NCR.

Q: In my off hours, I work as a freelance writer. May I offer my services to NCR?

A: No. NCR employees may not act as suppliers to NCR.

Q: Does ownership of stock in any NCR competitor create a conflict of interest?

A: Not necessarily. The amount of stock that you hold generally will determine whether your personal holdings must be reported. A financial interest in a competitor does not necessarily constitute a conflict of interest. It does mean, however, that such holdings are subject to review. Generally, owning stock in a mutual fund that invests in a competitor's securities is acceptable.

IMPROPER PERSONAL BENEFITS

Q: I do a lot of business and personal travel. Can I keep non-cash benefits I receive from business travel (for example, frequent flyer credits) and apply them to my personal travel plans?

A: Yes. You can keep frequent flyer credits and use them for personal travel. However, you cannot influence or change the travel plans made by the company's authorized travel agents to receive these or other similar non-cash promotional benefits. Doing so violates NCR policy in two ways. First, you have a conflict of interest between your personal interests and company requirements to use the lowest logical airfare. Second, you are misusing company funds if your travel is more expensive than the authorized travel agent could have arranged.

ENVIRONMENTAL/ OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH & SAFETY /PRODUCT SAFETY

Q: If I spill a small amount of solvent that is labeled as "hazardous," why can't I simply clean it up?

A: Always immediately report spills of any amount of a hazardous material to your local Environmental & Safety Manager. NCR has employees who are specially trained in handling such spills and the company may be required by law to report such occurrences. Unless you have received proper training in hazardous materials response and have appropriate equipment and supplies for proper disposal, do not attempt any clean-up or disposal.

Q: What if test results make our product look bad?

A: Set up and perform every test according to approved, written procedures. Under no circumstances should you alter test results to make NCR products appear better. All test results must be accurately recorded and reported.

GLOBAL COMMERCE

Q: I do not work in the United States. In my country, payments to government officials are an accepted way of obtaining business. Would the payments violate applicable anti-corruption laws?

A: Even though it may be an accepted way of doing business in your country, the payment most likely does violate applicable anti-corruption laws, regardless of custom and practice in your country. You should consult with the Ethics & Compliance Officer or the Law Department before offering, promising or providing any such payment.

Q: May NCR employees give gifts of value to customers or suppliers?

A: In most circumstances, NCR employees may give inexpensive promotional items as gifts. However, NCR employees may not give gifts to any customer or supplier that may influence, or create the appearance of an attempt to influence, the judgment of the supplier or customer in its business with NCR. Please see CMP 912 (Gifts and Entertainment) for more guidance regarding gifts and hospitality.

Q: What forms of customer entertainment are appropriate?

A: In most circumstances, entertaining customers and potential customers at NCR-sponsored cultural and sporting events and providing occasional modest business meals is acceptable, provided that such activity does not violate the Company's other guidelines or policies, particularly CMP 904 (Standards for Business Conduct (Foreign Corrupt Practices Act)). However, if the customer in question is a governmental entity, you may not engage in such activities without first consulting the Law Department.

Q: I have been asked by a customer to certify that a product was not manufactured in Israel. How should I respond?

A: Providing this type of certification would violate the U.S. anti-boycott regulations. You should not respond to any boycott-related requests without first contacting the Law Department for guidance.

Q: A potential new customer wants to order a sophisticated computer system but does not require any installation or other support and refuses to disclose the intended use of the system. Can we accept the order?

A: The customer's conduct reflects warning signs that the product may be intended for an inappropriate end-use, such as nuclear, chemical, or missile proliferation activities or for diversion to an unauthorized destination. You should not accept the order without contacting the Corporate Import/Export Compliance organization in the Law Department for guidance.

Q: My organization has received an order from a distributor. We have reason to believe that the distributor intends to re-sell the product to an end-user in North Korea. Can we accept the order?

A: The United States has imposed a trade embargo on certain countries, including North Korea. Accepting an order when you have reason to believe that the transaction involves an embargoed destination may violate U.S. law. You should not accept the order without contacting the Corporate Import/Export Compliance organization in the Law Department for guidance.

PROTECTION OF COMPANY ASSETS

Q: How can I determine whether company information is proprietary if it is not specifically labeled as such?

A: If you are uncertain, you should assume that the information is proprietary. Then, contact the employee or organization that generated the information. That employee or organization is responsible for determining whether the information is proprietary. In all cases, use the following criteria, in accordance with Corporate Management Policy 1402: "Protecting Information within NCR."

- The nature of the information
- The sensitivity of the information
- The information's value to NCR
- The information's recipient -- employees, contractors, suppliers, potential clients, or the public
- The harm to NCR's business interest if the information became available to competitors.

If you remain unclear about whether the information in question is proprietary, please seek counsel from your manager, the Law Department, or Global Information Security.

Q: What should I do if I discover an infringement or misuse of an NCR copyright or trademark?

A: Employees should promptly report such instances to the Law Department. This can be very critical to protecting NCR's rights.

Q: NCR's insider trading policy prohibits "short-term speculation" in NCR securities.

What does this mean?

A: Some types of legal trading can appear to be based on the misuse of material non-public information. To avoid even the appearance of misconduct, you should not both buy and sell NCR securities in the open market (such as the New York Stock Exchange) within any 6-month period. For example, if you buy 100 shares of NCR stock in October, you cannot turn around and sell 25 shares of NCR stock in December. However, this rule does not apply if two circumstances are present: (a) you have valid personal reasons for selling your NCR stock that are unrelated to the investment value of the securities; for example, you have emergency medical expenses; and (b) you do not have material non-public information about NCR.

Q: If I know material non-public information about NCR, can I sell NCR stock for personal reasons only? For example, if I need the money for vacation?

A: No. That is illegal. You must wait until you no longer possess material non-public information before selling your NCR stock, and you must also take care not to do so during a blackout period if you are subject to NCR's blackout practices.

Q: Does the insider trading policy cover my investments in NCR stock under the NCR Savings Plan?

A: Generally, no. Ongoing investments in NCR stock made by the trustee of the NCR Savings Plan are exempt from the policy. However, if you decide to change your investment direction under the Savings Plan -- by investing more or less money in NCR stock or moving all or a portion of the balance of your Savings Plan account in and out of the NCR stock fund -- you must follow the rules of the policy.

Q: Is there anything wrong with copying software programs and installing them on my PC at work?

A: You should not do so. Only properly licensed and NCR-approved software programs are to be installed on your PC. Copying a program may violate its license; contact the Law Department if you have any questions.

Q: I recently discovered that NCR is using a piece of software in a manner I'm not sure is covered by the license. What should I do?

A: NCR respects the copyrighted work of others. As a result, if you believe that NCR may be improperly using licensed software, you should report your concerns to the Law Department.

Q: A customer's finance manager wants information on some of our financial control procedures for a benchmark analysis her company is preparing. Can I release this information?

A: Requests for any type of NCR financial records need to be reviewed on a case-by-case basis. Depending on the situation, the risks could range from compromising company security to violating securities and antitrust laws. In such cases, contact the Law Department for guidance.

Q: Do I have to protect proprietary information even after I no longer work for NCR?

A: Yes. You may not use or disclose NCR proprietary information even after you are no longer employed by NCR.

Q: I want to know how a competitor prices its products. My new team member used to work for that competitor. May I ask her about this information?

A: No, you may not ask your team member to disclose the confidential information of her former employer to you.

WORKPLACE

Q: I have occasionally overheard racial and sexual comments in front of my manager. I know the comments aren't right, but I don't want to be seen as a non-team player or even lose my job.

What are my options?

A: Your manager's tolerance of such behavior is not acceptable at NCR. Employees who encounter such situations can contact Human Resources, call the NCR AlertLine, or discuss the matter with senior management. Due to data protection and privacy issues, some countries may preclude the reporting of certain types of concerns through the NCR AlertLine and may discourage or prohibit anonymous reporting. All good faith reports are investigated immediately and without reprisal to the originator of the report.

Q: Doesn't affirmative action mean that NCR has quotas for hiring and promoting minorities and women?

A: No. NCR does not use quotas. Quotas undermine the principles of equal employment opportunity. NCR only considers lawful factors when hiring or promoting employees.

Q: My manager has asked me several times to meet socially after work. Each time, I have refused, but the invitations persist, and I am concerned this may be affecting my career. What should I do?

A: You have no obligation to grant these requests. You should contact HR Central or the NCR AlertLine with any concerns.

HUMAN TRAFFICKING:

 - Are workers of legal working age, and are tasks that pose safety risks performed only by those 18 years of age or older?
 - Does the business partner take possession of workers' passports, identification or travel documents?
 - Does the workforce of the business partner (or any individual worker) act as if they were instructed or coached by someone else? Do they allow others to speak for them when spoken to directly? Are workers free to interact or contact people outside their immediate environment?
 - Is the workforce of the partner informed of their job duties prior to being engaged by the partner, or do you hear complaints that the workforce is recruited for one purpose and forced to engage in some other job? Was the transport of the workers to the partner's facilities or their recruitment paid for by facilitators whom they must pay back, whether by providing services or otherwise?
 - Does the partner properly pay their workforce for the work they perform – for example, does the partner provide at least the legal minimum wage for work performed? Are workers paid directly, or is someone else in control of their earnings?
 - Does the workforce believe they must work for the employer to pay off a debt?
 - Does the partner force others to perform sexual acts? For example, does the partner require its workers to provide sexual acts or attempt to procure sexual favors from others?
 - Does the partner permit its workforce to voluntarily terminate their employment? Are start and end times reasonably well explained to workers? Do workers have freedom of movement (for example, can they take leave to go to the bathroom while on duty, to go on vacation, to return home)? Are workers free to live where they choose?
 - Does the partner use physical or humiliating forms of discipline for workplace infractions?
 - Are working conditions safe?
 - Do international workers receive home visits? Are they guaranteed to be returned to their home country at the employer's sole expense upon the end of the international assignment?
- Speak up! Promptly raise all concerns about conduct within NCR's own organization, or within any partner with whom NCR does business, to NCR's Ethics and Compliance office.
